EXPECT LINDBERGH TO FLY OVER HERE MONDAY MORNING

Likely to Wing Way Over The Borough Between Eleven
And Twelve o'Clock

AT THE CAPITAL TODAY

Epoch-Making Reception To Be Tendered Flier At Washington

According to an announcement made today, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will fly over Bristol on Monday enroute to leave Bolling Field, Washington, about 9 o'clock Monday morning, and will probably reach Philadelphia between 10 and 11 o'clock, and Bristol shortly after.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11, 1927—Amid the roars of circling airplanes overhead and the shrieking sounds of scores of river craft, the long gray shout of the U. S. Cruiser Memphis poked her way into the Navy Yard dock at 11:32 a. m., today, bearing Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh home from his glorious trans-Atlantic adventure.

ABOARD NAVAL AIR CONVOY
WITH MEMPHIS, (By radio), June 11.—Smiling "Slim" Lindbergh slid into the historic Potomac early this morning at the head of the most spectacular and colorful homecoming procession the world has ever known.

The center of a majestic naval convoy, with almost a thousand men piloting him, and a roaring fleet of a hundred planes circling the vessel in faultless formation, the young man everybody knows steamed out of Chesapeake Bay before breakfast in a procession such as no other hero has known. Ideal weather prevailed.

Sixteen hours inside of the Virginia Capes, where he was met yesterday afternoon by half a dozen navy destroyers and sixty army and navy planes, America's youngest Colonel was already aware as the Memphis nosed into the Potomac that the nation's welcome at Washington would write a lasting page in history.

Not since the swift fire-hound Memphis passed the Capes has "Lindy" been allowed to forget that an entire nation acclaims him for his epochal flight.

"Welcome Home," wig-wagged in the queer Esperanto of the sea from the destroyer Goff, greeted the daring young eagle just as he sighted his native shores off Cape Henry.

TRADE NOTES

At 225 Mill street Factors-to-You Furniture Company opened a new store today. This business is a branch store of the Philadelphia establishment at the northeast corner of Second and Market streets.

A complete line of furniture, beds, bedding and rugs will be carried at the Bristol store; and a souvenir will be given to every visitor today.

It is announced by the firm that charge accounts will be given to responsible persons.

L. C. Wetling is displaying a complete line of gifts for graduates in his display window at 312 Mill street. The list consists of rings, necklaces, watches, fountain pens, bracelets, pocket knives, belt buckles, etc.

As he intends to discontinue his retail business at 316 Mill street, Samuel Frishberg, proprietor of the Manufacturers' Outlet, announces a reduction in his stock of clothing, ladies' dresses, coats, etc., will be sold at exceptionally low prices.

The entire stock of Frank Weissblatt, consisting of apparel for men, women and children, is to be sold within a limited time. The sale commenced yesterday, and exceptional opportunities are offered for those needing garments of any kind.

Mr. Weissblatt, who has been conducting his business at 392 Jefferson avenue, is now connected with the Continental Import Company, and obligations compel the raising of a specified sum at once. Therefore the entire stock is placed on sale and the bargains offered are of excellent value.

—Mrs. William H. Ossman, of 905 Beaver street, was a Thursday guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles Irwin, of West Philadelphia.

—Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Leedom, and Mr. and Mrs. James L. Rue, of Radcliffe street, are attending a dinner and card party given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wood, of Bethayres, Pa.

—Mr. Edward Henry, of Hulmeville, has purchased a handsome new 1928 model Nash sedan, from William E. De Groot, the local dealer.

Tender Surprise Shower To Newly Wedded Couple

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Summers, of Main street, Tullytown, was filled to its capacity when a jolly group of young people gathered there on Thursday evening to give a miscellaneous shower to their daughter, Lillian, who was recently married to Mr. Earl David Raub, of the same town.

The bride was most agreeably surprised when her many friends gathered in her honor and tendered her this shower. She was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts.

A very enjoyable evening was spent in playing of games and the rendition of vocal and instrumental selections. Refreshments were served and at a late hour the guests departed, wishing the bride and groom continued happiness and prosperity.

"SAINTS" SCORE NINE; SHUT-OUT LEEDOM'S

Stallone Gets Dollar for His Home-Run Hit; Fields Also Pounds Out for "Homer"

TULIO STRIKES OUT TEN

(By "Scotty")

Before a crowd of 300 fans, whose numbers increased to 500 as the game progressed, St. Ann's shut-out the Leedom's nine and piled up nine runs on the former's ground last night.

"Red" Waters officiated during the first four innings, and was relieved by E. White for the last two, "Red" having to leave the game to go to work.

Tulio's pitching was considered quite a feat, striking out two in the first, three in the second, one in the third, two in the fourth, one in the fifth, and one in the sixth—ten strike-outs in six innings.

A dollar was put up by a "Saints" fan, when the season opened, for the first St. Ann's player who made a home-run on that field. Scorer "Nick" Giannocovo turned the bill over to Stallone, who performed the feat in the second inning, beating Fields to it by three innings, the latter making a home-run in the fifth when he pounded the ball out and beyond center-field.

Palerm showed his "stuff" when, caught napping off first in the third inning, he played tag with first and second basemen, and after getting back to first in safety, had the nerve to make a dash for a steal to second—and made it.

Game by innings:

FIRST

Thompson opened the game with a hit to center field for a safe trip to first; Rodgers struck out; Patterson struck out; McFadden hit to short-stop and was put out at first—1 hit, 0 runs, 0 errors.

Gilardi hit to center-field and was safe at first; "Fudgy" Missera walked; Gilardi having been caught napping at first; Fields hit to third, was safe at first; Missera going out at second; Palatta walked; Di Risi hit to short for a safe trip to first; Riola, with bases full, struck out—1 hit, 0 runs, 1 error.

SECOND

Barton struck out; Dietrick struck out; Rich struck out—0, 0 and 0.

Palerm hit to left field and was safe at first; Stallone hit to right field for a home run, bringing in Palerm and winning the dollar for first St. Ann's player to perform that feat; Tulio hit to left field for two-bagger; Gilardi struck out; Missera struck out; Fields hit to short and 0 error made first, Tulio going to third; Palatta struck out—3 hits, 2 runs, 1 error.

THIRD

Mulholland hit over third for safe trip to first; Dugan punted past pitcher and made first; Mulholland advancing; Thompson struck out; Rodgers flied to second; Patterson hit to third and was put out at first—0, 0 and 0.

"Mike" Di Risi flied to center; Riola struck out; Palerm took first base when hit by pitched ball, and later played tag with first and second, finally getting back safely to first and later stealing to second; Stallone bunted past pitcher and was put out at first—0, 0 and 0.

FOURTH

McFadden flied to center field; Parrell, replacing Barton, struck out; Dietrick struck out—0, 0 and 0.

Tulio hit to short and on error made first; Gilardi took first base when hit by pitched ball; Missera, with two and three full, struck out; Fields walked; Palatta (Tulio stealing home on error) punted to pitcher, made first, and Gilardi on a slide came safely home; Di Risi flied to third; Riola, with two and three loaded, hit to center field and on a standing slide made second, Fields and Palatta reaching home; Palerm, when hit by pitched ball for the second time, took first base; Stallone, with two and three full, walked; Tulio, with bases full (Riola reaching home on passed ball, and Rodgers replacing Dugan as pitcher) struck out—2 hits, 5 runs, 2 errors.

FIFTH

Rich struck out; Mulholland hit to third and was safe at first; Dugan flied out to left field; Thompson flied to right field—0, 0 and 1.

Gilardi hit to center field and was safe at first; Missera struck out; Fields, with Gilardi on third and J. Mulholland catching for "Bob" Mulholland, punted out past center field for

Here

EXHIBIT FOR ONE WEEK

Every youngster in Bristol between the ages of eight and 80 is expected to be on hand in the railroad yards tomorrow to witness the unloading of the Nat Reiss Shows, coming here to furnish the midway amusements at the summer frolic of Goodwill Fire Company, which opens Monday for a week at Sullivan's Field.

The long special train of 30 double length railroad cars is expected to reach Bristol about noon and within a few moments after the cars have been switched into place the heavy vans will start rumbling off the flat cars and loaded with their many mysteries will head for the showgrounds.

The Nat Reiss Shows is said to be one of the largest exposition companies on tour and under the ownership of Harry G. Melville has grown from a small company in 1909 to one of the three big shows in 1927. It is known throughout the West, where it has exhibited during the last few years, as the "show with a worth while reputation," winning this appellation on the cleanliness of the attractions and the merit of the twenty shows and nine riding devices that are carried.

Among the featured attractions that will be seen on the mile long midway will be the "Hippodrome Society Circus," the "Georgia Minstrels," "Wonderland Circus Sideshow," "Fearless Purle and his Motor-drome," presenting a thrilling spectacle of a lion pursuing a rider on the straight walls; "The End of the Road," a realistic museum, and many others.

be the soloist and will render the selection entitled: "I Have Set Watchman." The subject of the pastor will be "God's Eternal Love."

In the First Baptist Church tomorrow the Sunday School will meet at 10.30 in the morning and march to the main church room on the second floor where the program will be in charge of the Sunday School. The church will be decorated with baskets of flowers and wild flowers will be used in profusion.

The program follows:

WOMEN VOTERS TO HOLD BIG CONFERENCE

Five Eastern Counties to Meet
In Headquarters of The League

INVITE LOCAL MEMBERS

Plans for a summer inter-county conference of the five eastern counties of the League of Women Voters to be held July 12 at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Lea in Devon were disclosed today following a meeting of county representatives at the League headquarters, 1725 Spruce street, Philadelphia.

The counties participating are Philadelphia, Montgomery, Chester, Delaware and Bucks and the aim is to make this conference one of the biggest events of the year. The county chairmen who will be responsible for working up interest in their territories are Mr. Francis R. Strawbridge, Philadelphia; Miss Gertrude Ely, Montgomery; Mrs. Harry Whitney, Chester; Mrs. John M. Ogden, Delaware, and Mrs. Benjamin A. Kirson, Bucks.

The purpose of the meeting is to offer an opportunity for discussing county problems not only at large but with particular reference to the peculiar needs of each unit, according to Mrs. Herman L. Schwartz, second vice-chairman of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters.

"It will also promote inter-county acquaintance among our members," Mrs. Schwartz said. "Those of us who study our local and state government know what benefits are to be derived from personal contacts and an intimate first hand knowledge of conditions. It is to further these contacts and this knowledge that we are arranging the conference."

A summer meeting of this nature is being planned for the western end of the state as well. State leaders feel that these conferences will be invaluable as a preliminary to the state convention which will be held this year in Williamsport on November 14, 15, and 16.

Mrs. Schwartz, Montgomery County, presided at the meeting where the plans were made and those present included Mrs. Charles M. Lea, director of the State League; Mrs. Harry Whitney, Mrs. Charles Fox, vice-chairman, Chester County League; Mrs. Edwin A. Yarnall, director of the State League, and Mrs. Benjamin A. Kirson, chairman of the Bucks County League. Mrs. Serrill Douglass, chairman of Bristol League, said: "We are in hopes the local members will bear this meeting in mind and make arrangements to attend."

Personal Notes

—Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, of Philadelphia, are guests over the weekend of Mr. Johnson's sisters, the Misses Johnson, of Radcliffe street.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Doyle, of Harrison street, had as a Saturday and Sunday guest, Mrs. Doyle's sister, Miss Hazel Shroud, of Trenton, N. J.

—On Monday, Mrs. Clifford Anderson, Mrs. Ernest Lawrence and Mrs. Walter F. Leedom, of Radcliffe street, with Mrs. George Roberts, of Mill street, attended a bridge party in Wynnewood, Pa., given by Mrs. James Knipe, who is a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Deeper Waterways Association.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lindley Comfort, of Dorrance and Cedar streets, have as their guest, Mr. Allen L. Shoms, of Hamburg, Pa.

—Mrs. Raymond Wright, of Bath and Other streets, entertained at her home on Friday evening at dinner and cards.

—Mrs. Ewald Henry and baby, of Cedar street, are passing a fortnight in Point Pleasant. Mr. Henry spends the week-ends with his family.

COUNTY FIRE LOSS PUT AT $522,000; FIVE LOST LIVES

Bucks County Firemen Meet
In Annual Convention
At Yardley

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Today Interest Will Center On Picnic at Washington
Crossing

Fire loss in Bucks County from June 8, 1926, to June 9, 1927, amounted to $522,000, according to the report of Bucks County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, which was presented at the annual meeting of the Bucks County Firemen's Association, held in Yardley, last evening.

It was the annual meeting of the County Association and officers were elected for the ensuing year, reports were presented and a number of addresses were made.

The report of Fire Marshal Stackhouse was more comprehensive than usual and gave much valuable information. It showed the following:

"Numbers of alarms answered, 227; fire loss, $522,000; insurance on property and contents destroyed, $487,000; value of property at risk, $1,100,000; new apparatus purchased, Ivyland, Dublin, South Langhorne, Perkasie at an approximate value of $30,000; new fire stations, Yardley No. 2, Newport at an approximate value of $22,000.

"Eleven engines were in service simultaneously at the Heacock Dairy fire.

"Three bus fires on the Lincoln Highway recently have demonstrated necessity for free and easy exit from rear of machines. Eight persons were injured.

"Two fires were caused by lightning and one of these buildings was rodded. There were 51 dwellings and 63 barns and outbuildings destroyed. Chemical engines used at 106 fires and pumping engines were used at 41 fires.

"A new company is being organized in Fallsington, Falls Township. "Firemen worked a total of 3,100 hours at fires.

"The Association was active in the prosecution of a man whose house was burned as a result of the illegal operation of a still. The man was convicted. Two men were found guilty of conspiracy in burning the house of one.

"Five persons, none of whom were firemen, lost their lives because of fire during the year. Two of the four were burned to death in the same house; one died as the result of burns received in an explosion; one died as result of being burned by lighted candle; baby mysteriously burned.

"The largest fires were the Forrest Theater, Bristol, loss $75,000 and the Heacock Dairy Barns, Woodside, loss $85,000.

"The causes of 50 per cent. of the fires are given as carelessness, defective oil stoves, burning rubbish, defective chimneys, children playing with matches."

There was a large attendance at the meeting held last night and speeches were made by James E. Groome, Yardley; Joseph R. Grundy, Clifford L. Anderson, Bristol; and J. W. Morgan, State Fire Marshal.

A resolution supporting the volunteer firemen of Bristol was adopted after being offered by Franklin Gilkeson, chief of the department.

Following officers were elected: President, James E. Groome, Yardley; vice-presidents, Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; Robert Landis, Quakertown; Lloyd Crouthamel, Dublin; secretary, L. K. Krouse, Sellersville; chaplain, Rev. Morrow, Tullytown; financial secretary, Fred M. Sherman, Newtown; treasurer, L. C. Leedom, Yardley.

Ladies' Auxiliary of the County met at the same hour and there were 75 members present. Fourteen new members joined and 14 auxiliaries were represented at the meeting.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Harvey Smith, Sellersville; vice-presidents, Mrs. Mary Clymer, Sellersville; Mrs. Robert Wenner, Morrisville; Mrs. Carrie Fine, Quakertown; secretary, Mrs. Mary Leedom, Yardley; financial secretary, Mrs. Daisy Schunk, Quakertown; treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Stoneback, Quakertown.

The firemen will picnic today at Washington Crossing and there will be numerous contests held.

Personal Notes

—Mrs. Theodore Roper, of Maple Beach, was hostess to the members of her card club at her home on Thursday evening.

—Miss Pearl Wilkinson, of Woodside, L. I., is spending the summer months with her aunt, Miss Mary A. Wilkinson, of 921 Beaver street.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crohe, of Edgely, Pa., are week-ending in the Poconos, where they are enjoying a trout fishing trip.

—Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson and daughter, Noma, of 314 Lafayette street, and Miss Ruth Weik, of 210 Jefferson avenue, are spending today at the Zoological Gardens in New York City.

SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1927

RECORD TREASURY SURPLUS
 Late in March President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon and certain congressmen were concerned because the year's federal treasury surplus, previously estimated as high as $750,000,000, might drop to $400,000,000 as March income-tax returns sank below expectations. And it was not good news to the taxpayer who knows treasury surpluses usually precede tax reductions.

But now there is jubilation all around. Secretary Mellon, famed as an ultra-conservative, now predicts a surplus of more than $600,000,000 on June 30. Large and unexpected treasury receipts explain, in part, what will be the greatest surplus in the federal government's history, if Secretary Mellon has not exaggerated. That Mr. Mellon has underestimated rather than overestimated the surplus is the contention of some authorities who place the surplus at $700,000,000.

Next to paying taxes it seems the thing that troubles the American people most is deciding what to do with surpluses of public money. The inevitable debate will begin among congressmen and on the street corner on the day the exact extent of the surplus becomes known.

The United States still has a national debt of approximately $18,000,000,000, and there are many who will urge that all or most of the treasury balance be used in reducing it. Their best argument is that the smaller the debt the less the interest charge, and every interest cut means a cut in taxes. From another quarter will come a demand for returning the surplus to the taxpayers in the form of a tax refund. That it will be seen as a juicy melon by the Mississippi flood sufferers and farm aid bloc is a foregone conclusion.

SELF SERVICE
 Many good folk are lamenting the passing of the era when men and women consecrated their lives to unselfish service and prepared themselves to become ministers, missionaries, teachers or country doctors that they might administer to the spiritual, mental and physical needs of humanity without thought of large worldly gain. They are not in error when they charge that modern men and women are choosing vocations today in which they can do the greatest service to themselves.

People today are coming to the belief that the best way they can help others is to produce much that their profit shall be large and that they shall never become dependent upon society. The old idea of service was direct. The new service is indirect. Twenty years ago it was still thought that only ministers, doctors and teachers served humanity. Today every workman who carries his whole day's wage home is known to have earned that wage in service to society.

Elbert Hubbard's version of the Golden Rule was, "Do unto others as though you were the others," but an even more up-to-date version is "Do yourself much good and no bad to others." Getting something for yourself is reprehensible only when it is gotten at the expense of another.

Perhaps it costs more to live now because we have more.

For the first year, love takes the bride to her husband's office; after that suspicion does it.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bilger and children, of Germantown, spent the week-end with the former's parents.

THE EVENING NEWSPAPER

The merchant who advertises in the EVENING newspaper cannot accurately measure the audience he reaches. No other advertising medium offers so much FREE coverage for the modern merchant.

People visit friends in the evening. During the day everyone has something to do. The evening is reserved for pleasant, friendly intercourse. The Smiths visit the Browns and the Joneses drop in at the home of the Greens. Perhaps all four families spend an hour or two at the Russells.

Conversation turns to living expenses. The Russells mention a bargain obtainable at a local store. They produce the EVENING newspaper, and FIVE families discuss the advertisement noted by the Russells.

Here are five potential customers, and the advertiser paid only to send his message to one. Such free coverage cannot be obtained through any other medium. The only newspaper present at these friendly gatherings is the EVENING newspaper. It is the newspaper that arrives just before these gatherings are held. Every advertisement in the EVENING newspaper is a strong bidder for the attention of visitors as well as homefolks.

It is service such as this—costing the advertiser nothing—that makes the EVENING newspaper an incomparable advertising medium. It sells the Russells and their friends the same merchandise. Yet the advertiser pays only to discuss his merchandise with the Russells.

The EVENING newspaper, therefore, is the CHEAPEST advertising medium obtainable.

The Courier is an EVENING NEWSPAPER.

Two-story brick residences containing six rooms and bath. All newly papered and painted throughout. Conveniences which are to be found in any modern house today—electricity, gas, hot air heater, water. Front porches of ample size and large bay-windows on second floor. A rear yard just big enough to be kept neat and attractive. With the touch of a housewife these dwellings can be made into real homes of comfort. Rents are very moderate. Location is good.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Bilger.

The South Langhorne police are still enjoying their leave of absence, due to the fact the State Highway Patrol is on duty here, which now leaves the intersection unprotected at Lincoln Highway and Bellevue avenue. The traffic lights on the corner have been covered, so that the motorist will not wait for the signal lights to change, this being done because many motorists being accustomed to lights would wait for them to change, and tie up traffic.

Late Tuesday night a freight trainman on No. 82 was leaning over the side of his train inspecting a Journal which was burning. While leaning too far he was swept off of his train by the safety fence at Langhorne station. Being rather seriously injured he was rushed to the Mercer Hospital on a passenger train which was due a few minutes after the accident occurred.

A truck and its cargo of fresh strawberries enroute to New York Tuesday night caught fire below city line on the Highway. The truck and strawberries were destroyed.

Mr. Daniel H. Bilger was given the contract to erect a home for Mr. Ed. Bellerby, of Philadelphia.

 "MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, college student, gets work as a dancing partner for rich women in a New Jersey roadhouse. There he meets the prettiest, sweetest girl he has ever laid eyes on—Sally Smith, the cigarette girl. Reciprocating his interest, she warns him against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, habitue of the Inn, who finds her "thrill" in "hunting" Bob for her loveliest apartment. Mrs. Smith, meeting Bob, is hostile; favoring Mannion, a rich suitor, Mrs. Hammond is subtly overcoming Bob. Sally realizes she has to fight for him.

Bob Ward shyly took hold of her hands.

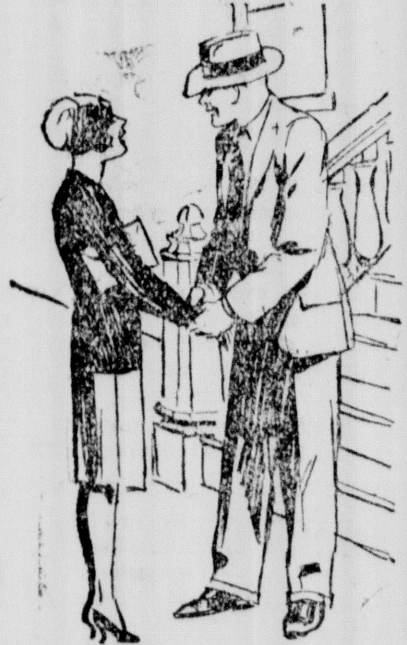

"Sally Smith," he said eagerly, "tomorrow night I have no classes. Let's go for a ride on the Fifth Avenue buses, or something! The movies downtown—anything you say!"

Sally's eyes shone like awfully happy stars, freshly spawned from the bourne of Eternity. "The bus!" she laughed. "I like that better. We can sit on the back seat and—"

"You just leave the 'and' to me, Sally Smith!" chuckled Bob, and then he turned and sprang like a three-year-old toward the Subway station. He had to do that—to keep from boldly seizing Sally and kissing her.

And Sally, who knew full well what impulse had made him run—wished he hadn't!

The rest of that week passed gloriously, what with the bus ride on Wednesday, and the care-free rides home in the pleasant serenity of each early June evening. They sang, always, when the four of them were together; and, in the rite, which was his alone, of seeing Sally home, Bob got to lingering longer each evening on the door-

"I like that better. We can sit on the back seat and—" step of the Smith house. This, despite Mrs. Smith's attempts to discourage it—by sudden and hostile appearances, and frosty remarks.

Mrs. Hammond, meantime, continued to play her hand of passion—in her own cunning and practised way. She calculated on a showdown assault on Saturday afternoon. Then, if ever, she would test and try Bob's virtue!

CHAPTER XII

Saturday afternoon came. Bob thought of it as the day on which he was to receive a sorely needed fifty dollars in salary; a tremendous lift toward the expenses of Commencement Day, less than three weeks off.

Sally thought of it as the day before the Sabbath day of rest, on which Bob had already made a date to meet her, directly after she returned home from church; they were to go away to Manhattan Beach for an early season swim.

Mrs. Hammond thought of it as the day of "frustrated plans." She was in a seemingly serious mood as she met Bob and began to dance with him that afternoon. She carefully avoided any display of personal charm, or physical allurements. She was his friend; his earnest, sisterly friend.

She talked to him of the graduation day, so near at hand. She talked to him presently, in a low-toned and oh! so deeply concerned way, of his financial problems and worries; of his ability to meet the heavy expenses incident to receiving his degree. There were so many extra things to think of, she knew—suitable clothes, and all that.

Bob found himself revealing his whole money condition, his innermost soul, in fact, to Della Hammond. Through the week he had been building a conception of his own of Mrs. Hammond. Quite frankly, he liked her; although he had been a little afraid of her. That fear had worn off, and he had come to discount the lurid tales told to him about her by his chums, by Mazie, by even Sally.

Shucks, there was nothing of immorality or mystery about Mrs. Hammond. It was her own business if she chose to dance here under a nom de plume. A lady in her social position had to take care. But she had revealed herself to Bob as nothing more than a brilliant woman, with an abiding interest in the things of the mind.

After all, Mazie Revere was a dumb-bell. Why take her word against Mrs. Hammond's character. And Freddy and Arch were just irresponsible, and inclined to romanticize. That's it: the reputed loveliest on Park Avenue was just a ferment of foolish, or mongering, minds.

"Bob, how in the world are you going to meet your graduation expenses?" Mrs. Hammond was asking.

"I wish I knew," he said earnestly. "Thinking about it gives me a headache. Of course, the money I'm making here is going to help a lot. But a fellow needs a little more than just enough to pay his immediate bills. Of course, I can get any kind of a job for the summer, but I am the sort who hates to waste time. I want to get right into my chosen field. Gosh, I hope I graduate with honors. The big industrial corporations are always watching to give jobs to fellows who win honors in the engineering course!"

"Bob, I'd hate to see your first chances ruined by the grind of poverty. I know so many important men, so many engineers, that I am sure I shall be able to do something for you very quickly, after you graduate. But, meanwhile, we must try to think up some way to help you over Commencement."

"Try to think up some way? That's all I do!"

"Yes, but you're just a sweet boy, Bob, and you haven't had any experience in such matters of the world. You need counsel, aid. For instance, one of the most important things of all is for you to make a good appearance when you interview men, after you graduate, for a position. A good personal appearance, I mean—clothes, you know!"

"Yes, I know!" said Bob, with just a trace of bitterness. It was all very well for Freddy and Arch; they had had to give to the charitable help of relatives, blasting his own plans and needs.

"Well, I'll try to think of a way to help. You won't mind if I'm so interested in you, will you, Bob? Of course, if you do—why—"

"Indeed I won't. I think it's mighty nice of you."

Her offer had come so spontaneously, so utterly devoid of passion or anything more than a purely platonic and friendly interest, that Bob was disarmed on the moment. Besides, his needs were so desperate that he could not afford to instantly set his face against any sort of an offer of interested help, particularly so apparently unselfish an offer as Mrs. Hammond's. It was all very well for Freddy and Arch; they had a good bit salted away. Though they had always been generous friends, they had lived frugally and had not had the same demands made upon them with which Bob had been faced.

"I'm glad you feel that way, Bob, really I am. Because I like you, and have nothing but the friendliest motives. Maybe it seems a bit strange to you that a woman like me should be so interested in helping you. And perhaps these people here have been repeating all sorts of idiotic and idle gossip to you about me. But I tell you, Bob, there is no truth in anything anyone has said to you about me. They know nothing about me, you see, and I am a little of a rebel. People, especially women, of a certain class, are that way."

"What I've often wondered, Della," said Bob, frank because she was speaking so confidentially, "is why a woman like you comes here to such a place. I'm sure you must know so many interesting people that you'd never be bored for want of something to do."

"There's a long story behind that, Bob. Some day I shall tell it to you. And very soon now, the first chance, in fact, that we have to talk together alone, I shall tell you who I really am. You will understand then the truth of what I am now going to tell you—that my whole purpose in coming here was a purely sociological one. I am President of a society women's federation that investigates all sorts of sociological conditions. I have written several books on sociology. And I am here merely seeking local color. I'll admit, too, that there is a good deal of the tomboy in me," she added, with a confidential sort of laugh, designed to be most disarming. "The playgirl, you know. So I do have fun about my investigations. And that's why it was most refreshing and unusual for me to meet anyone like you here."

BUY IN BRISTOL!

A DOLLAR SPENT IN BRISTOL IS WORTH TWO SPENT ELSEWHERE BECAUSE IT IS REINVESTED BY LOCAL PEOPLE IN LOCAL ENTERPRISES AND HELPS TO PAY FOR LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Did you ever really give the subject of the local merchant and you any serious thought?

Perhaps you are a loyal citizen and patronize local shops and stores as a matter of loyalty, but as this is not a lecture it will do no harm to read this, anyhow.

Your local merchant is first a citizen, a resident of your community the same as you are.

He lives in your community, pays taxes along with you for the upkeep and improvement of your community; he raises his family and sends his children to school—schools which he helps, with you, to maintain.

If he is a butcher, he buys clothes and shoes for his family from a fellow-merchant. No matter what his line of business, he spends money with other business men of the community.

He banks in local banks; he takes his family of an evening to the local shows.

Summed up, the money he makes in the community is spent in it.

Were it not for your local merchant, there would be no schools, no paved streets, no public buildings, no progress nor prosperity. He is here day in and day out, rain or shine, giving his time and energy and money to whatever will benefit the district, taking part in the administrations of the community or aiding to regulate the administration for the best interests of the community by his vote.

HE IS A CITIZEN—

Is he not entitled, then, to consideration?

But there is something more than a call for your loyalty to him as citizen to citizen—neighbor to neighbor.

Living here as he does, he comes to know his customers. They are to him not "just customers," but "fellow citizens," "good neighbors." As he will be here tomorrow and the next day and next year, meeting his customers face to face, day after day, his business gets his personal attention—every transaction is a personal dealing between him and the patron.

He is your neighbor—your fellow citizen, building for tomorrow and next year, and fully cognizant that the only way to build is to sell good goods at right prices.

Your local merchant is in himself a guarantee of his goods and prices and services because he is always at the same stand meeting largely the same customers.

He cannot exist upon the patronage of transients—his livelihood comes from permanent residents; his aim is to make permanent residents regular customers. He must do this—hence his wares, his prices and his service are all and always arranged and held to this end.

You never heard your live-wire, wide-awake home merchant say, "Oh, well, one customer more or less makes no difference." Every customer, to him, is important; a new customer is eagerly sought, and a customer less—well, your local merchant will not let it happen if anything just and reasonable under the sun will prevent such a thing happening.

So not alone out of a sense of loyalty to your community, but for your own sake—for the sake of your purse and the satisfaction of being given personal attention and service—buy of our home merchants.

SAVE TIME WITH OVEN COOKERY

(Editor's Note: This is one of the series of cooking articles by 6 famous cooks running exclusively in this paper. Paste it in your cook book.)

When days are fullest, and time is most precious, try an oven-cooked meal. You will save yourself many minutes in preparation and watching.

And you will be able to serve a tasty meal—the kind which will make your family exclaim, "Let's have this again soon!" The menu given today is by Mrs. Belle DeGraf, San Francisco, home economics counselor.

MRS. BELLE DEGRAF

A Delicious Oven Meal

Beef and Macaroni, San Francisco
Baked Lima Beans, Paprika
Pineapple and Cheese Salad
Stanford Prune Whip Pie

The actual cooking time for this meal is three hours. But, with a reliable stove, the cook does not need to stay in the kitchen more than half an hour.

First, heat the oven well for 9 minutes to 425 degrees, while you make a pie crust. Bake for 10 minutes. Then put meat and beans into oven, and reduce heat to "moderate," or 350 degrees. You need pay no more attention to this cooking for 2 hours, when meal is ready to serve.

A heat regulator takes the guess-work out of baking. It registers the exact degree of heat. One, made especially for oil stoves, may be fastened easily to practically any glass-door oven.

Beef and Macaroni San Francisco

Select about 2 pounds of lean beef, cut into pieces suitable for serving. Sprinkle each piece with salt and dredge with flour.

Heat drippings of fat, flour, salt pork in a frying pan, then add meat and quickly brown each piece on all sides. When browned place in a large casserole and pour over 2 cups of tomato sauce, or pureed tomato, one teaspoon of salt and enough hot water to cover meat. Add 12 or more ripe or stuffed olives. Cover casserole.

Place in a moderate oven and cook about 3 hours. An hour before meal is to be served add 1 1/2 cups elbow macaroni or macaroni broken into inch lengths. If more liquid is needed add either tomato or stock.

Baked Lima Beans, Paprika

Soak lima beans overnight, or at least for several hours. Drain, cover with fresh cold water and set over flame, bringing slowly to the boiling point. Drain again, and place in a casserole or bean pot.

Cover with water, add 1 teaspoon of salt, 2 teaspoons paprika, and 2 tablespoons butter. Cover and cook with the meat, allowing about the same time.

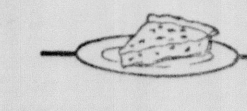

Is your oven so built that you can cook fish, cake, and onions in it at the same time with no blending of flavors? One manufacturer is selling just such ovens. They give such perfect air circulation that all odors are carried away. There is not the slightest blending of flavors.

Pineapple and Cheese Salad

Allow one slice of pineapple for each serving. Place a tablespoonful of well seasoned cottage cheese in the center of each slice or make cheese balls with butter ball paddles. Make a French dressing with lemon juice.

A good French dressing is made as follows:
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
1/4 cup lemon juice or vinegar
1/4 cup olive oil (or other good salad oil)

Oil and juice should be cold. Put all ingredients into fruit jar and shake well.

Stanford Prune Whip Pie

Bake a pie crust, then add the prune whip:
1/2 cup prune pulp
1/2 cup sugar
2 egg whites unbeaten
1/2 cup finely shredded almonds or walnuts

Rub stoned prunes through a coarse sieve. Put sugar, prune pulp and unbeaten egg whites in a bowl and beat with a whip egg-beater until stiff enough to hold its shape. Fold in part of the nuts, then heap mixture in the baked pie crust. Sprinkle nuts on top and place on top grate of oven until nuts are delicately browned.

This is a good, substantial meal which hungry folks will relish. There are innumerable combinations which may be oven-cooked, too. For example, roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, potatoes browned in the pan, onion souffle, and custard pie. You can readily think of many others.

If you wash rice in two warm waters instead of cold, it will remove the starch much quicker.
